

No. 65

CONTENTS

Art Issue

Featuring Tom Yeates' Adaptation of

"HOW TARZAN CAME AGAIN TO OPAR"

by Edgar Rice Burroughs

ALSO

The Barsoomian Chronicles

by Alan Howard

NO.IV-"ALL IN THE FAMILY"

THE BURROUGHS BULLETIN, No. 65 Copyright © 1977 by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved. Published irregularly for THE BURROUGHS BIBLIOPHILES, a nonprofit literary society and foundation, dedicated to stimulating interest in and preserving the works of the great American author, Edgar Rice Burroughs. THE BURROUGHS BIBLIOPHILES and its publications act as an authorized clearing house for your ideas and material regarding the works of Edgar Rice Burroughs, which is shared by hundreds of enthusiastic fellow members throughout the world. We welcome your ideas and efforts in behalf of the club. Subscription, by membership only, is $25.00 which entitles you to all out the world. THE BURROUGHS BULLETIN is the original Edgar Rice Burroughs fanzine and the only one authorized by Edgar Rice Burroughs, himself. Please address all editorial mail, manuscripts, art, photographs, etc., to the editor and founder, Vern Corleil, 6657 Locust, Kansas City, Missouri 64131.

"I STILL LIVE"—Edgar Rice Burroughs

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY AUTHORIZED EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS FANZINE

HOW TARZAN
CAME AGAIN TO OPAR

BY EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

ONE SIDE, LA, YOU
SAVED ME ONCE, AND SO I WOULD NOT HARM YOU. BUT DO NOT INTERFERE OR ATTEMPT TO FOLLOW OR I SHALL HAVE TO KILL YOU
ALSO.

WHO IS SHE?

SHE IS MINE

DEDICATED TO SALLY BIDSTRUP SOUTHERN THE MOST BEAUTIFUL PERSON I HAVE EVER KNOWN
Thomas Yates

Ch. F. 25
EUREKA

THE BARSOOMIAN CHRONICLES

by ALAN HOWARD

NO.IV - "ALL IN THE FAMILY"

As is very well known, in every Barsoomian chronicle to reach our planet, the leading character marries one of no less rank than royalty. It was therefore, with considerable asperity that Carthuvan, the son of Carthoris, learned from his son, Carthulan, that the boy wanted to marry Dalla, the daughter of the Chief Thoatkeeper.

"Never!" shouted Carthuvan, "Oh that your mother was alive. She could always talk sense into you. You know that you are betrothed to Levia, the daughter of the Jed of Zodanga."

"But I don't love her!" said Carthulan.

"What does love have to do with it? Your revered ancestor, the Warlord, desires this alliance as an aid to pacifying the ever perverse and truculent Zodangans."

"Oh, damn my revered ancestor," wailed Carthulan, nearly in tears from anger and frustration. "He certainly got the girl he wanted. Why should I be any different."

"Tell you what," said Carthuvan, "why don't you bring the girl around to me, and we will talk this out."

"I'll do it, but it won't do any good."

The next day Carthulan ushered Dalla into the the presence of his father. She was a pretty little lady indeed.

"How do you do, you pretty little lady," said Carthuvan.

"Oh Carthulan, by the way, the Warlord is paying a state visit to Gathol, and he espically requested your presence in his entourage. You will have to leave right away to join him at his palace. You just leave this pretty little lady with me, and I'm sure we can work something out by the time you return."

"Now my dear—", said Carthuvan, as his son reluctantly took his leave.

The following week Carthulan returned to find Dalla installed in the household as his father's wife.

And so, Carthulan married the Zodangan princess, and she was squint-eyed, and a termagant. It served him right—never introduce your best girl to your widowed father.

